Linda A. Markham is the President of Cape Air, leading over 700 employees in four regions worldwide. She oversees the day-to-day operation of the airline, including flight operations, airport services, safety, human resources, training, marketing, customer relations, and company culture.

Linda joined Cape Air in 2002 as the Director of Human Resources. She was instrumental in developing a strategic plan and building a team to support the airline's rapid expansion, focusing on operational excellence, growth, and sustainability.

In 2004, Linda was named Chief Administrative Officer and in 2013, Linda was promoted to President. Currently, Linda is only one of two female airline presidents in the United States.

Passionate about the advancement of women in the industry, Linda currently serves as the Chairwoman for Women in Aviation International. Linda was the first woman to serve as Chair of the Board for the Regional Airline Association and currently serves on the Association's Executive Committee. She was recently named Board Chair for the Cape Cod Chamber of Commerce and sits on the Board of Directors for Cape Air. In April of 2020, Linda was appointed to Governor Baker's State Reopening Advisory Board.

A native of Massachusetts, Linda resides on Cape Cod and loves to travel.
