RELEVANT EXPERIENCE

Mr. Martin is an Executive Consultant with Inter VISTAS Consulting. He manages the firm's economic impact analyses for U.S. clients and supports the firm's air service development and borders/passenger facilitation practices.

He was the Principal Investigator on a project for the Transportation Research Board on the impact of changes in air service on regional economic development.

He led the firm's economic impact analyses for the civil use airports in four states – Virginia (including both of Washington's airports), Idaho, South Dakota, and Indiana. He led the economic analyses of Frontier and Southwest Airline's operations on the State of Colorado and a [confidential legacy network] airline's operations at two of its international hubs and its headquarter operations.

Prior to joining Inter*VISTAS*, he served as the Assistant Director for Transportation Issues at the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO), where he specialized in commercial aviation matters.
